Jesse E. Brown

TRINITY — Memorial services for Jesse E. Brown, 82, of Trinity were held at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 4, 2003, at the First United Methodist Church of Trinity with the Rev. Kevin King officiating.

He died Sunday, Feb. 2, in Huntsville.

Mr. Brown was born June 7, 1920, in Macomb, Ill. He was a veteran of World War II, serving in the U.S. Air Force as a pilot on B-24, B-17 and B-29 bomber aircraft.

He retired as a sales manager for American Thermos following 38 years of employment. Mr. Brown enjoyed cooking for his friends and family and was widely known for his baking powder biscuits. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church and, with his wife, Madge, had traveled all over the world.

Survivors include his wife of 60 years, Madge Brown; a daughter and son-in-law, Sherry and Jim Carey; a son and daughter-in-law, Steve and Sue Brown; four grandchildren, Christine and David Gianadda and Tim and Angela Carey; two great-grandchildren, Gordon and Nora Gianadda.

The family has asked that memorial contributions be made to the First United Methodist Church of Trinity.

Waller-Thornton Funeral Home of Trinity directed the arrangements.
